MANY WILL BE DISSAPPOINTED

When They Come Here Tomorrow and Find the County Funds "Extinct"

CLAIMS EXCEED THE CASH

And Over $6000 Will Have to Remain Unpaid for Several Months

Saturday will be a day of disappointment for those who are waiting for a pay day from the county commissioners for labor and material on repairing the turnpikes of this county.

The commissioners have overrun their limit of appropriation about $6000 and these debts can not be paid until the spring installment of taxes and it will probably be June before any money can be had by the laborers.

The northern district under Commissioner Charles Lyons, will not be affected as they kept within their limit and can pay out, but the southern district, under Charles Kelso, has gone far beyond the limit and cannot pay the hired laborers at this time.
The middle district, under Commissioner Willard Amos, is likewise affected like the southern district.

The commissioners have already paid out $22,227.36 with about $6000 remaining unpaid, and it has mostly been expended on the Rushville and Andersonville pike.

A partial payment has been made to the stone quarry men and those who labored under the superintendent's will simply have to wait for their money, but it is as good as gold.

CALEB POWERS JURY DISAGREES

Late Bulletin This Afternoon Tells Story of Mis-trial in Kentucky

A press dispatch from Georgetown, Ky., late in the afternoon, states that the jury in the famous Caleb Powers case had agreed to disagree. Reports say that eleven men stood for acquittal.

DICK WILSON GOES INTO TRAINING

With His Stable of Fast Horses—Jogging Horses is a "Nightmare"

Dick Wilson, a local reinsman of national fame, had his stable of twelve horses shod this morning at the local blacksmith shops, preparatory to jogging the steeds to get them in form for the racing next season.

Each of the horses are jogged from eight to nine miles each day dur n; the training season.

"If you think it is a snap," said Wilson today, "to ride from fifty to sixty miles in a light cart over these roads every day, come with me some day and I will put you through the hardest day's work you ever experienced."

DEVIL HAS HOLD OF RUSHVILLE

Declared "Little Jack Harner"
Who Sat in the Corner and Wouldn't Work

TURNED DOWN AN OFFER

When Employment Was Offered Self Appointed Object of Charity, he "Beats" it

John S. Harner, of East Tenth street, the man who advertised for charity a few days since, is quitting Rushville, saying "the people of this city have no mercy or charity in their hearts."

He will shake the dust from his feet and leave for Anderson, where he will take up his residence.

Harner was offered work today by Street Commissioner Greenlee, but he shook his head declaring he had sold his entire household effects for ten dollars, and would be leaving in a few hours.

The members of Rushville White Wing—the street cleaning department —had made up a little purse and were going to buy provisions for Harner and his daughter, until "pay day" came around for their fellow employee.

Harner says the devil has hold of the people of means in Rushville, and if he finds the same condition in Anderson, he will remove to Hamilton, Ohio.

The man is able bodied, but a crank on religion, and especially that part of it which treats on "Christian charity." He labors under the impression, (it is the only way he labors) that God has sent him among men to be an object of charity, and if the rich, meeting the condition face to face, do not give him aid, they will perish.

His seventeen-year-old daughter was taken to the Main Street house to remain until Harner gets a "foothold" at Anderson.

AGED WOMAN WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED

Mrs. Sarah A. Smith Succumbs to Heart Trouble This Morning

Mrs. Sarah A. Smith, aged 76 years, who has been ill for about a week,
was found dead this morning in her bed at her home in Jackson township.

Her son Jehu, who lived at home with his mother, was up at 2 o'clock this morning to keep the fire going and she was then alive and death was not expected. After rebuilding the fire he again lay down and fell asleep and on awakening at 5 o'clock he found her dead.

It is thought that she did not make a struggle when the last came. Mrs.
Smith was one of Jackson township's oldest and highly respected ladies, who was loved by all who knew her.

Deceased was a widow of James T.
Smith, who has been dead for seventeen years. She leaves eight daughters, Mrs. Alva Newhouse and Mrs.
Thomas Oline, of this city; Mrs. William Ramsey, Mrs. Abram Whitlock, Mrs. Robert McMichael, of this county; Mrs. America Wyne, of Dunreith; Mrs. Albert Ward, of Columbus, and Mrs. Charles Guild, of Kentucky, and one son, Jehu, who lived at home.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the late residence in Jackson township, conducted by Rev. Hetrick, of New Salem.

Burial will take place at East Hill cemetery.

Teachers Institute of the Rush county teachers will be held in County Superintendent Headlee's room Saturday.

CIRCULATION!

Circulation,—a question of great import, but to a few.
The business man—the advertiser—is always interested,
for it is what he buys when he pays for space in a newspaper. But the general public cares not one whit about it, consequently, it is not often that we are moved to speak of the subject.

But there comes a time when it is only fair to us that we beg our large number of patrons to bear with us, while we have a word or two.

When false statements are made and wrong impressions given out, it behooves us to break silence. We merely wish to reiterate, that after the GREAT MERGER, Precinct Organization of Directors, Stockholders and CO-WORKERS, a Philanthropic Contest, and an OVER-HAULED and BRAND NEW MANAGEMENT of a boastful contemporary, the RUSHVILLE DAILY RE-PUBLICAN STILL ENJOYS THE BLESSED PRIVI-LEGE AND DISTINCTION of going each day into SEVERAL HUNDRED MORE HOMES than any
DAILY NEWSPAPER ever published in this city.

Mark you, we are saying that our circulation exceeds,
by several hundred, the circulation of any daily ever published in Rushville.

The Daily Republican will be found in over three hundred more homes in the city of Rushville than any daily ever reached. Three hundred homes is quite a few in a small city like Rushville.

And another thing: The Daily Republican reaches over three-fourths of all the people who do their buying in Rushville. It has what newspaper men are pleased to term AN INTENSE CIRCULATION.

In the main, The Daily Republican goes to the homes of people who trade in Rushville, who visit in Rushville, who trade in Rushville and who are interested in Rushville. In the outlying districts—communities where the people trade in other county seats—other newspapers may boast of a slight gain over us.

As an advertising medium—and after all, that is all circulation is worthy of mention—THE DAILY REPUB-LICAN is THE paper, and this fact is appreciated by the business men of Rushville, and the advertising brokerage offices of the larger cities.

If there is doubt in the minds of anyone, a good way would be to examine the subscription lists of all publications. No "dead ones" on The Daily Republican list.

Again we apologize for using valuable space to reiterate a fact which the thinking people have already and always accepted, but our silence for the past few weeks has caused "the calf to take more rope each day until it hung itself."

The newspaper with the smaller circulation should know better than to make a boast of any inflated and exaggerated circulation. Rather they should remain silent, it would be more becoming and profitable in the long run, for even the day of LIES IN BUSINESS DEALINGS is past, and people demand and will know the truth.

But why scold,—and sermonize and editorialize? Let us show the spirit of forgiveness for the babe in swaddling clothes—the novice in the newspaper business—for they know not what they do.

Your honor!—the public—we close.

For corroboration of our statements see the subscription lists—SUBSCRIPTION LISTS TELL.

WILL CELEBRATE LINCOLN DAY

Plans Now Under Way for a Big Banquet and Appropriate Program

AT ONE OF THE CHURCHES

Where Hundreds of Loyal Citizens Would Gather to Honor
His Name

Arrangements are now under way to fittingly celebrate Lincoln Day—February 12th—in Rushville this year.

A big meeting at one of the larger churches is planned, which will be marked with a banquet and toast from the best after dinner speakers in the city.

Lincoln clubs in the larger cities pay tribute to the martyred president with similar meetings, and it is most commendable that any community honor and rever the name of one of the most illustrious statesmen that ever lived in any country and any age.

It requires but little effort to excite enthusiasm for such an occasion for it is born in Americans to love the man who held the reins of government and bridged one of the greatest breaches in the most critical time in the history of these United States.

REMAINS WILL BE LAID TO REST HERE

Ed Beher, a Former Rushville Barber, Died at Frankton of Dropsy

Ed Beher, a barber, formerly in the employ of Phil Olinger, of this city, died at Frankton yesterday, and the remains will probably be brought here Saturday afternoon for burial. Death was due to dropsy.

Sam Beher, a brother of the deces-ed, lives in West Second street.

MAKE YOURSELF RIGHT WITH GOD

As Well as to Bid for New Members, is Purpose of a Revival

ST. PAUL'S M. E. MEETINGS

Are Proving Interesting and Attractive—Elequent Sermons
by Pastor Dr. V. W. Tevis

Dr. Tevis preached to a comfortably filled church last night, the second night of the St. Paul's M. E. church revival.

He took for his text the biblical story of the two sons who were instructed to work in their father's field as they were to eventually inherit the estate and drew from it a practical and comprehensive application for the Christian people of today, and their position towards the church—especially during revivals.

Dr. Tevis admonished the members of his flock that they must not expect the preacher to do it all, but with their co-operation a great good could be accomplished. He laid down four rules, which he asked them to govern themselves accordingly during the revival, which had to do with their duty as Christians.

Some of the characteristic excerpts from Dr. Tevis's sermon are as follows: "Will God sweep out evil like a mighty cyclone, destroying sin on all sides? No, God does not do business that way."

"He don't propagate his truths by the elements."

"Who will do His work? I say the church must roll up its sleeves and get to work."

"We are His children, and will enjoy the inheritance of the hereafter,
so we must do His work now."

"God's cause in Rushville is dependent upon the people who profess His name."

"He who helps someone else towards God promotes himself: it is a blessed privilege"

"Go to work today in my vineyard," is the burden of this lesson," declared the divine, "for no one but the hard worker is fitted for the heaven and happiness hereafter."

The pastor declared that a revival was not necessarily a time for taking new members into the fold alone, but it was a time for all men to make themselves right with God. He urged his auditors to be in attendance each night and to extend a hearty invitation to others.

INSANE WOMAN DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Matilda Ewing of Jackson Township Succumbs After Long Illness

Mrs. Matilda Ewing, wife of John Ewing, of Jackson township, died at an early hour this morning at East Haven hospital for the insane at Richmond.

Mrs. Ewing was taken to East Haven only a few weeks ago from her home in Jackson township, after an insanity commission, adjudged her a person of unsound mind. Deceased was not only weak mentally, but her physical condition was weak as well for a number of years. She was sixty years of age.

The remains will be brought to Knightsdown Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and taken to Blue River church, where the funeral services will be held. Burial at Blue River cemetery.

—A Kutche, of Richmond, who is interested with Pete Adams in the Greek Candy store here, was in this city today, accompanied by his family, and they spent a pleasant day
"seeing Rushville."

USUAL STRIFE AT CONVENTION

Wayne County Sent Two Delegations to Sixth District Democratic Convention

OSBORN IS CHAIRMAN

Retiring District Chairman Meek
Will Move to Another State—
Was Loudly Cheered

The Democrats of the Sixth district in convention at Connorsville yesterday afternoon elected John Osborn, of Greensburg, as their district chairman.

Osborn stated after the meeting that he would support W. S. Jackson, of Greenfield, for State chairman.

The convention was called to order by Sylvester Meek, retiring district chairman, which probably marked his last "official" act in politics.

Mr. Meek stated that he would not permit his name to go before the convention, as it was his intention to move to another State in a short time and he was not in a position to accept the place. He was loudly cheered.

Wayne county had sent two delegations and they were not permitted to take part in the proceedings until the committee on credentials should decide which delegation should be entitled to represent the county.

The resolutions adopted endorsed Kuhn for Governor and Bryan for President, and condemned Watson and the Republican policy of high tariff.

COUNTRY SCHOOL BELLS ARE RINGING ONCE MORE

Pupils are Back in School Refreshed by the Holiday Vacation

The old school bell can be heard again in most of the townships of Rush county, and after a week's vacation the children have gone back into the school rooms, refreshed and in better condition to work.

Some of the schools, however, will not begin until next Monday. The school board of this city and city superintendent believed that it would be better to wait until next Monday and begin on the first day of the week rather than start in on Thursday of this week.

Woman Must Have Thought
Him a "Hop Fiend"

One of the young men from the edge of the Franklin-Rush county line, who enlisted in the navy when a recruiting officer was in this city recently, has returned, having failed to pass the stringent examination. But he tells a story of his experience worth repeating.

When he was taken to the office of a physician in Indianapolis for a physical test, after the custom of such examinations, he was stripped of all his clothing for a thorough inspection of his physique. One of the tests to try the wind and heart action is that a man must hop twenty steps, after which the physician makes a hurried examination. The would-be Jack tar was told to take the required twenty hops. On asking where he should take them the doctor told him to hop out into the next room and back through an open door. The young man did as requested. Neither were aware that a lady had come in and taken a seat in the next room while the two were in the adjoining room. Out the door into the next room went the hopping candidate for the navy. He did not see the woman until he turned to hop back. Both became so confused that they kept on—the man hopping and the woman sitting.

ENDED IN GUTTER

Count Boni de Castellane Contributes Further to the Gay Life Record.

SPIT IN A PRINCE'S FACE

Dispute Beginning In a Church Winds Up With Titled Springs Rolling In Gutter.

Intervention of a Big Butcher Finally Brings the Belligerents Up Standing.

Paris, Jan. 3.—Count Boni de Castellane, from whom his wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, was recently divorced, and Prince Helle de Sagan, who on several occasions was reported to be engaged to Mme. Gould, had a personal encounter at the Church of St. Pierre de Chaillot, while a service to the memory of the Lady Stanley Errington, a relative of both men, who died lately in England, was in progress. Beginning inside the church, where Count Boni says the prince insulted both him and the sacred edifice, the encounter was resumed at the doorway, where Count Boni, followed by his brother, Count Jean de Castellane, overtook the prince. Count Boni spat in his cousin's face. Then came the clash of canes, followed by a rough and tumble fight on the pavement, which ended in the gutter, where the men were finally separated by a big butcher. Count Boni at the moment of intervention was holding down the well-nigh insensible prince, while Jean, according to eye-witnesses, was administering to him a severe kicking.

When the police arrived the butcher was holding the two principals in the fight, who were covered with mud. The prince was bleeding profusely from a wound in the right temple, where he had been hit by Count Boni's heavy stick. With the butcher's hand on his collar, Boni was haranguing a crowd which had gathered, as to why he had spat in the prince's face. The police invited the two men to go to the station house, and this, after some disputing, they agreed to do. All three of them, bespattered with mud, accompanied the police and, followed by several thousand persons, they marched off to the station, where they made "explanations."

Both Count Boni and the prince gave their own version of the affair, each claiming that the other was the aggressor, but the prince alone lodged a complaint, charging the brothers with assault. A "process verbal" having been written out, according to the French law, the three men signed it and then were released. The case will now go before the prosecutor, who will decide what, if any, steps will be taken.

In view of the fact that Prince Helle has elected to pursue the matter in the courts, the idea of a duel seems to be precluded. Besides, Count Boni declared that it is doubtful whether he would receive the witnesses of the prince, even if the latter could find anyone to act in that capacity. Prince Helle is laid up in bed with his head swathed in bandages, while Count Boni is visiting the newspaper offices, telling the story of the encounter.

When seen by the Associated Press correspondent he was in high humor. Throwing back the lapels of his fur coat in order to better display one of his famous white silk waistcoats, he began the recital with the history of his cousin, whom he painted in the blackest colors, declaring that Prince Helle had been ostracized by his own family, not one of whom would permit him to enter the house. Count Boni then proceeded to explain the episode and declared that it had nothing to do with Mme. Anna Gould, but was the result of an old grudge between him and the prince. He added that the prince had not been invited to the ceremony at the church.

Prince Helle de Sagan, when seen by the correspondent in his bedroom, could only account for what he termed a brutal and deliberate attack by Count Boni and Count de Castellane on the theory that Boni was a madman. He therefore would not appeal to the code, he said, but would allow the case to take its course in the criminal court. He declared that the attack was entirely unprovoked.

DEADLY EXPLOSION

Two Young Women in Fireworks Factory Meet Death.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 3.—In an explosion that wrecked a building of the Rochester Fireworks company, one young woman, Sadie Ernst, was instantly killed, a second, Lillian O'Connor, recently married, was so badly injured that she died at a hospital a short time after being taken there, and May Calligan was seriously burned, and is expected to recover.

The explosion occurred in the finishing room of a building of the company's plant in Main street east, and the force of it blew out one side of the building and caused the roof to collapse. The cause of the explosion is not yet known.

The Rochester Fireworks company is a widely known concern, having been established in 1836. Its president is James Palmer, Jr.

NEW HAND AT HELM

Captain Pillsbury Appointed to Succeed Admiral Brownson.

Washington, Jan. 3.—After a conference with President Roosevelt, Secretary Metcalf announced that Captain J. E. Pillsbury has been selected as chief of the navigation bureau of the navy department. Captain Pillsbury will succeed Rear Admiral Brownson, who recently resigned.

Captain Pillsbury is recognized as one of the most efficient officers in the navy. He has had experience in the bureau of navigation as assistant under Rear Admiral Taylor, and recently ended his sea duty as chief of staff of the Atlantic fleet. He has had the advantage of having served on the general board at different times. The new chief commanded the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius.

A NEW ENOCH ARDEN

Pennsylvanian Legally Declared Dead Responds to Call of Coin.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 3.—Although officially declared dead several years ago and for many years believed by his wife and friends here to have died, George M. Gable appeared in the local court yesterday to claim $12,000 from the estate of his uncle, Jacob Gable. Seventeen years ago Gable disappeared, leaving his wife and several small children. All efforts to trace him failed and his wife, believing him dead, remarried.

When Jacob Gable died in 1904 one of the heirs was declared dead by the court. The executor, however, refused to pay over the inheritance to his widow and instituted a search which resulted in the long-missing man being found in Sacramento, Cal. Gable came East and was identified in court by the wife he left seventeen years ago, as the rightful heir. The woman's second husband has begun proceedings for a divorce.

STEAMER MISSING

The Mount Royal Has Not Been Reported for Twenty-Five Days.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 3.—The fate of the Canadian Pacific steamer Mount Royal, now twenty-five days out from Antwerp, with Captain Purcell and nearly 400 persons on board, is causing great anxiety. Not one vessel arriving in the last three weeks has reported the Mount Royal, and the lack of news is regarded as ominous.

The Mount Royal had on board on leaving Antwerp 305 steerage passengers—Galicians, Russian Jews, Poles, and a few Belgians. She also carried a crew of eighty men. While the agents of the Canadian Pacific here say they are not alarmed for the safety of the Mount Royal, shipping men shake their heads and some say the missing vessel will never reach port.

Tenants Gain Strong Ally.

New York, Jan. 3.—There will be no teamsters to move the goods of the striking tenants on the Eastside if notices are served on them, according to an announcement from the strikers' headquarters. It was said that one local branch of the United Teamsters' union had already passed a resolution to refuse all dispossess business and that others would soon follow. The Anti-High Rent League now claims to have organized occupants of over 1,000 houses and to have secured reductions so far for 250 tenants.

Melancholia Leads to Suicide.

Belleville, Ill., Jan. 3.—Suffering from melancholia, Charles Becker, sixty-seven years of age, director of the National Bank of Belleville, committed suicide by shooting. He was found lying dead on the floor by his daughter, Mrs. Bertha Orr of Chicago, who is here on a visit. Becker was state treasurer in 1888. His wealth is estimated at $500,000.

To Cut Out Red Tape.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—Sundry changes in the naval regulations designed to bring them up to present usages to conform as to salutes under certain conditions with the practice in vogue in the army and to eliminate "red tape" and circumlocution in the administration of office work, have been approved by President Roosevelt.

A Daylight Lynching.

Brookhaven, Miss., Jan. 3.—The first lynching of 1908 occurred here yesterday when a mob in broad daylight took a negro away from police officers and shot him. The negro, whose name was not known either to the police or mob, was accused of killing a policeman at Oak Vale, Miss., on Tuesday night.

Coinage executed at the mints of the United States during the month of December amounted to $16,767,780.

A CRIPPLED ROAD

Has Been Taken Out of the Hands of the Ryan Trustees.

IMMEDIATE POSSESSION

Judge Pritchard's Decree Turns the Seaboard Air Line Over to Two Friendly Receivers.

Necessity For Prompt Action Arose From the Maturing of Heavy Liabilities.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 3.—The Seaboard Air Line railroad system was put into the hands of receivers here through the action of Judge Pritchard of the United States circuit court, who was hurriedly summoned from Asheville, N. C., to take cognizance of the application for a receivership. Judge Pritchard appointed as receivers R. Lancaster Williams of Richmond and S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore. Both men are identified with banking houses in Baltimore, Williams being of the firm of Middendorf, Williams & Co., and Warfield president of the Continental Trust company. Mr. Williams is also a partner in the firm of John L. Williams & Sons of this city. The bond of each was fixed at $50,000.

The title of the case as filed is "The Seaboard Air Line railway, complainant, against the Continental Trust company, trustees, under the first mortgage made by the Seaboard Air Line railway, defendant."

Judge Pritchard's decree gives the receivers immediate possession of the property, which embraces the main stem from Portsmouth, Va., to Tampa, Fla., with numerous branches to coast points on the east and Atlanta, Montgomery and Birmingham on the west, a total of 2,332 miles. This action will take the crippled road with its $72,000,000 capital and $58,000,000 liabilities out of the control of the Ryan voting trust, into the hands of two men. The necessity for prompt action arose from the maturing of heavy liabilities Jan. 1.

BACK AT HIS POST

Juror Whose Illness Delayed Walsh Trial Is on Deck Again.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Testimony was introduced in the trial of John R. Walsh yesterday to show that the properties to which he is alleged to have diverted to the funds of the Chicago National bank were in good physical and financial condition. The trial was resumed after an interruption owing to the illness of a juror. M. W. Wells, general manager of the Chicago Southern and of the Illinois Southern railroads and formerly identified with the management of the Southern Missouri railroad, testified that he had great faith in the future of these Walsh ventures and had impressed his view upon Mr. Walsh. F. H. Trissel, attorney for the Bedford Quarries company, the Bedford Belt railway and the Southern Indiana railway, testified that the Belt road was purchased by Walsh at one-half its actual value and that the Southern Indiana railroad, by virtue of the business accruing from the Walsh quarries and coal companies, had greatly increased and that the towns along the line had grown materially. E. H. Pfaffin, civil engineer of the Southern Indiana, and J. W. Thompson, general manager of the same road, also gave testimony tending to prove the worth of the Walsh properties.

WANTON MURDER

Aged Farmer in New York State Killed by Drunken Rowdies.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Three young men, Raymond Byrd, Elmer Farley and Arthur Luce, have been arrested and charged with manslaughter in causing the death of John Bruton on his farm near Churchville, Monday night. The accused were arraigned before Justice James Mann in Brockport.

Neighbors found the body of Bruton, a prosperous farmer, aged sixty-two, on the floor of his house on Dec. 31. The house showed signs of a terrific struggle, the floors being littered with broken furniture. The body of the old man was smeared with the blood and entrails of a fowl, and his hair and whiskers had been pulled out in patches.

George Rosendale, Bruton's hired man, first reported the death of his employer. He accused the three prisoners of having entered the house on Monday night while intoxicated, and wrecking the interior of the house. When he interfered he was knocked down and remained unconscious during the fight. When he awoke the men were gone and Bruton was dead on the floor.

Deficit for the Month.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The monthly statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of December the receipts were $47,283,825 and the expenditures $55,818,873, leaving a deficit for the month of $8,535,000. The receipts fell off as compared with December, 1906, about $8,530,000 and the expenditures increased by about $9,281,000.

THE OHIO PLAN

Voters Will Express Preference for Candidates by Direct Primary.

Columbus, O., Jan. 3.—The Republicans of Ohio will be given an opportunity to express by direct vote their choice for the party's candidates for president at primaries to be held on Feb. 11, when delegates and alternates to the Republican state convention will be elected. The convention will be held in Columbus on March 3 and 4, and will select in addition to four delegates-at-large to the Republican convention candidates for governor and other state officers.

The call for the primaries and convention was adopted last evening by the Republican state central committee after a protracted and lively session. The friends of William H. Taft, secretary of war and candidate for the Republican nomination for president, were in control of the committee, casting fourteen votes to seven for the supporters of Senator Joseph Benson Foraker, also an avowed candidate for the presidency. The vote stood fourteen to seven on every proposition which required a roll call except the selection of a temporary chairman for the state convention. James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior, the choice of the Taft supporters, received thirteen votes to eight cast for Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus. Richard McCloud of London, a close personal friend of Mr. Daugherty, but a Taft supporter, voted for him as against Mr. Garfield.

The officers chosen for the state convention are: Chairman, James R. Garfield, Cleveland; secretary, R. Switzer, Gallipolis; assistant secretary, Malcom Jennings, Athens; sergeant-at-arms, Richard Gilson, Steubenville. The state committee decided that it had nothing to do with the selection of national delegates from the congressional districts, and declined to make any suggestion in regard thereto.

Several amendments to the call were proposed by the friends of Senator Foraker, but in each case they were voted down. The chief fight was made against the direct primary plan for the selection of delegates to the state convention. It was proposed that delegates to county conventions be chosen by direct vote, the county conventions to choose the delegates to the state convention.

GET RICH QUICK.

Schemes of this class have again come to grief along with the gullible investors, causing serious loss to innocent business concerns, as it always the case of panics in Wall Street. While this last lesson is yet fresh in mind, it is an opportune moment to consider causes and means to avoid like trouble in the future.

Direct your attention to the greatest of all Newspapers the Cincinnati Enquirer. From its columns one can readily detect the trend of currency, its lodging places, by whom handled, uses made of it, and final results.

Again you read quotations of Bonds, Stocks, and Securities on every nature, fixing Status of all business from the retailer, to United States Government.

Also Current News, facts and reliable data covering the entire world; all sufficiently explicit to enable thinking people to avoid snags and follow the channel of success.

Its extra size and high price, is the secret of its ability to discover, obtain, print and serve its patrons with all the news, and cater to wants of people in every calling of life.

The Weekly Enquirer for the year 1908 has greatly increased its Clubbing offers which now include the most select and popular publications of the day at prices slightly over half the regular Subscription rates.

Do not overlook the fact that the year 1908 promises to excel in prosperity any of the past, and that the Enquirer printed at Cincinnati, Ohio, is one of the most reliable sources of information.

"DAINTY LAUNDERING"

Our methods of washing, starching and ironing would scarcely injure a butterfly's wing, much less a sturdy shirt or collar. There may be a trifle of exaggeration in this statement, but you know what we mean, that we exercise conscientious care in the way we "do up" things. This is a laundry saving bank—your clothes last longer—because of his care we always use.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS

Cut These Out and Paste Them Up Where You Will See Them Every Day

I will not be careless about my health.

I will never allow a cold to wear off—it wears away the lungs instead.

I will remember that pneumonia can be prevented by taking in time Father John's Medicine.

I will avoid "Patent Medicines," "Cough Cures" and so-called "Immediate Relief Remedies."

I will remember that what is mistaken for relief is instead deadening of the nerves by the opium and other poisonous drugs which the majority of them contain, which weaken the body while the disease remains and gets a stronger hold.

I will remember that Father John's medicine is neither a "Patent Medicine" nor a "Cough Syrup," and that it is all pure nourishment, free from Opium, Morphine or other Poisonous Drugs.

I will remember that Father John's Medicine builds up and makes strength at the same time cures the cold and all throat and lung troubles.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 5, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Songs of the heart: I. What is true blessedness?—Ps. 1: Matt. v. 8-12. (A New Year's consecration meeting.)

The New Year has just passed, and the world has rung with salutations from man to man. The one desire above all others, mutually expressed, has been for happiness. How many times in the past few days men have saluted each other with "A happy New Year!" But the mere wishing of happiness to one another will not accomplish it. It depends upon more than words. And when all is said and done the truly happy man is the one who lives in a right attitude toward God, who has a part in His kingdom, is most deeply interested in his fellow men and enjoys the happiness of heart and soul expressed in portions both of the Old and New Testaments and especially in what are commonly called the beatitudes of Christ, so named from the word beati, the opening word of each verse. Beati means more than happy. It is correctly translated "blessed." Happiness may come from earthly things, but blessedness from God alone. Earthly happiness is temporal and uncertain. Happiness that has attained to blessedness is "a permanent state of spiritual felicity." It begins on earth. It finds its fullest fruition in heaven.

The beatitudes of Christ have never been surpassed as a summary of true blessedness. 1. The poor in spirit win heart; the humble are blessed. Conscious in its wants and needs, the humble heart comes to God and finds in Him what it needs. The proud heart is self satisfied, finds its satisfaction riches, position and fame. But no one is so unhappy as a proud man. He is naturally sensitive, and his pride is continually getting a fall. Pride keeps us from God, and the proud man feeds his heart upon husks. 2. The mourning ones are blessed. They are the spiritual mourning ones. They mourn over their sins, and God, through Christ, comforts them with a comfort of which the world knows nothing. 3. The meek, the gentle, the mild and tranquil, not agitated by passionate ambition of those seeking advancement in a temporal kingdom—they shall inherit the "land," Canaan, the type of all blessings. In many cases the prophecy is literally fulfilled, but it refers primarily to the inheritance of blessings in the kingdom of God. 4. Then follow those who hunger and thirst after God's righteousness, who have the joy of being filled; the merciful, who shall receive mercy from God and in many cases from men; the pure in heart, those who possess inward purity from God, who are blessed in seeing Him, not only hereafter, but also in this life; the peacemakers, who shall from that disposition be recognized as the sons of God; those who are "persecuted for righteousness' sake," whose reward in heaven will be great.

Truly such blessings as Christ here describes would bring to the most discouraged soul the perfection of blessedness. And they are free—free to all who fulfill the conditions necessary to their position. With such opportunities for true blessedness before us for the new year, shall we turn aside from them and try to feed our souls upon material things and thereby obtain blessedness?

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xii. 1-3; Ps. ii. 12; xxxii. 1, 2; lxxv. 1-4; lxxxiv. 1-12; cxix. 1-8; Isa. xxx. 18; Matt. xxv. 31-46; Luke vi. 20-23; Jas. i. 23-27.

God's Special Answer.

The Christian Endeavor movement seems to me to be God's special answer to the daring attacks of certain ecclesiastics and others upon the simple but glorious gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. While these misguided leaders are discouraging prayer and tearing the Bible to shreds this Endeavor movement pledges its 4,000,000 members to reverence the Bible, to read it every day and daily to pray to its divine author. And the young Endeavorers of today will be the fathers and mothers of the next generations to witness for God and His truth. So let us not be weary in well doing. Let us not lose heart amid abounding unbelief. God will take care of His church.—Christian, London, England.

Loyalty to the Church.

The religion taught and practiced by Christian Endeavorers is not a dreamy, introspective, hermit-like religion. The society believes in doing as well as praying, in practicing as well as preaching, but all our efforts will count for naught without loyalty. You would better cut loose from every tie that binds you to Christian Endeavor and remain loyal to your own church than attempt to be loyal to the cause of Christian Endeavor and forget in which church you have a home and to which you owe allegiance. Let us be a noble army of young men and women of whom our church and pastors may have reason to be proud.—C. C. McNeil in Jamaica Christian Endeavor Gem.

and wait for more grace when He shall come again (Eph. ii. 8; Rom. v. 2; Heb. iv. 16; 1 Pet. i. 13). It is the riches of His grace all the way through till we see and share the riches of His glory (Eph. i. 7, 18). Every manifestation of God, from the garden of Eden story on, has been through the Son of God.

While London and Europe rejoiced at the cancellation of the United States gold imports, we have a right to rejoice also. It means that we have received all the gold that we need and that the end of the scare has come. About $95,000,000 of gold has arrived in New York from Europe since the beginning of November, and $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 more is on the way across to us. We have obtained this gold in the face of the high discount rates of the big national banks of Europe and of the other obstructions which they raised against us. Apparently, however, our needs in that direction have been satisfied. While we have a giant's strength, we have wisely refrained from using it like a giant. Money is again flowing into the banks. The reserves of the New York associated banks, which for many weeks past have been far below the legal requirements, are climbing rapidly toward that line. The $185,000,000 which will be distributed in New York a few days hence as the profits for the closing part of 1907 will quickly diffuse itself among the arteries of trade.

The general complaint among publishers is that printing paper is constantly growing dearer. In the Middle West many local papers have raised their subscription price fifty per cent in order to pay for the paper.

From the time when Gutenberg first used moveable type, made of wood, to the present day of metropolitan papers, some of which consume the product of acres of spruce, in single edition, printing has in very large degree depended upon the forest.

In the face of a threatened shortage of timber, the amount of wood consumed each year for pulp has increased since 1899 from two million to three and one-half million cords. The year 1906 marked an increase of 93,000 cords in the imports of pulpwood, the highest average value per cord for all kinds, and a consumption greater by 469,653 cords than that of any previous year. The total value of the wood consumed in 1906 was $6,400,000.

The Republican office recently paid out $1400 for a car load of paper. The same quantity and grade of paper cost a year ago but $850.

The Hartford City Times-Gazette says forcibly: "If Indiana is to have a look in at the national Republican convention it will be due largely to the personal efforts of Mr. Fairbanks. He went out among the Republicans of the states and got acquainted, and told them he would be delighted to receive their support at the national convention. He has not at any time posed as the greatest 'statesman,' or greatest anything. He has tooted his horn but little, and at no time has he gone way back and sat down at the behest of the other candidates. No one will find fault with him for that. To the extent that a president should influence federal control he may be trusted to exert himself. He is a safe man and just now he probably has the best show for the nomination of any of the candidates."

In this opening year it is well to remember that some people do not live long enough while some live too long, and that each one of us has to decide for himself to which class he will belong. If a man's deeds are evil, and it is by deeds that life is to be measured, then his life is too long, however short it may be reckoned by years. But if his deeds are good he does not live long enough even though he should reach a century of earthly existence.

The loss of Kentucky in 1907 was a heavy blow to Mr. Bryan, for it strongly impressed upon him the fact that his "tremendous crowds" mean votes for the other side. But he announces in his paper, the Commoner, that "Kentucky will be in the Democratic column in 1908 to a certainty." Prophecies have not always been fulfilled.

WHAT IS GOOD?

WHAT is the real good?
I asked in musing mood.
Order, said the law court;
Knowledge, said the school;
Truth, said the wise man;
Pleasure, said the fool;
Love, said the maiden;
Beauty, said the page;
Home, said the sage;
Fame, said the soldier;
Equity, the seer.
Spake my heart full sadly,
"The answer is not here."
"This within my bosom,
Softly, this I heard:
"Each heart holds the secret—Kindness is the word."

Tom Taggart's Crowd Was

Robert G. Tucker Writes Entertainingly of the Democratic Mix-Up Throughout the State

Indianapolis, Jan. 3.—Thomas Taggart's political fortifications were somewhat battered in the conventions held yesterday to elect new district chairmen of the Democratic state committee, but it is believed here today that he will be able to secure the election of Stokes Jackson of Greenfield state chairman by a safe margin. The anti-organization forces, however, have not abandoned their confident attitude, and no one can say for certain who will win until after the committee meets here next Wednesday. The following district chairmen were elected: First district, T. D. Scales, Boonville; Second, Alvin Padgett, Washington; Third, Mark Storen, New Albany; Fourth, George Pleasants, Vevay; Fifth, Peter Foley, Terre Haute; Sixth, John Osborn, Greensburg; Seventh, Bernard Korbly, Indianapolis; Eighth, Lew Ellingham, Decatur; Ninth, Michael Foley, Crawfordsville; Tenth, J. K. Risk, Lafayette; Eleventh, A. G. Emshwiller, Hartford City; Twelfth, E. G. Hoffman, Ft. Wayne; Thirteenth,

S. N. Stevens, Plymouth. The surprising results were the election of Scales over Arch Stephenson of Rockport, and Charles Greathouse of Mt. Vernon in the First, and Emshwiller's success in the Eleventh. The result in the First is looked upon here as favorable to the Taggart organization, as the Evansville Democratic organization, led by Jack Nolan and followers of Mayor Bohne, were defeated in their efforts to elect Stephenson. Major Menzies led the fight there against the Evansville contingent and won in a brilliant finish. Scales said today that he is not pledged to anyone for state chairman, but it is thought that he will favor Jackson. In the Eleventh Emshwiller was elected because he pledged himself to vote against Chairman Taggart's plans. In the Second district convention at Linton, Gilbert Hendren of Bloomfield was endorsed for state chairman, but Padgett was not instructed to vote for him. Padgett favors Hendren first and Jackson second. In the Third district convention at New Albany, Storen had a close call, winning from Thomas Brock of Jeffersonville by two votes. The convention endorsed Adam Heimberger of New Albany for state chairman. Storen is for Jackson on second choice. In the Fourth district convention at Seymour, Pleasants, an organization man, defeated John C. Branaman by a vote of 59 to 56. Branaman was backed by Joe Cravens and Nicholas Cornet, candidates for nomination for congress against Lincoln Dixon. In the Fifth, Peter Foley of Terre Haute, an organization man, had a walkaway. Jackson won in the Sixth, where Osborn was elected at Connersville over George Harris of Wayne county. Osborn said he will vote for Jackson. There was no opposition here to the organization slate with Korbly at the head. At Portland, Ellingham was elected by acclamation. He favors Hendren or Jackson. At Frankfort Michael Foley had no opposition. He is unpledged for state chairman, but will vote for Risk on the first ballot. At Monon Risk won an easy victory. At Peru a majority of the Eleventh district delegates showed themselves to be unfriendly to the present organization. At Fort Wayne Hoffman won with very little effort over Daniel M. Link of Auburn. Hoffman is supposed to favor Jackson, but is said to have pledged himself to Lagrange and Steuben county delegates to oppose his candidacy. Stevens had no opposition in the Thirteenth. It is thought here today that on the wind-up Jackson will have the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts sure, which will be sufficient to elect. Risk will have the Tenth sure, with good chances for the Ninth, Twelfth and Thirteenth, but at no time does it seem possible that he will have as many as five votes. Hendren will have one vote sure and perhaps two on the first ballot and Heimberger one or two.

CURRENT COMMENT

This "Monarchy" Business.

Now and then an American rises to predict a change from a republic to a monarchy for this country. The inference is that things are drifting that way. The fact is that nothing short of a great calamity can bring the people of this country to accept anything in the way of dictatorship or absolutism. Without absolutism the immediate political effect of a change would be scarcely noticeable, but the moral and social effects would be marked and in the end disastrous. Americans as a rule do hate the idea of a king less than they did half a century ago. When we lived in the shadow of the Revolution boys imbibed a hatred of kings with their mothers' milk. Lads of ten or twelve would seriously discuss the relative blessings of free government over a monarchy. It was said that a king could put a subject in prison and even take his life at will. So the American small boy burned powder on the Fourth in dead earnest, and he grew up passionately devoted to free institutions.

But in fifty years we have learned a good deal about monarchies that our fathers never dreamed of. Immigrants from England, Germany, Austria and the smaller kingdoms have never told us that the imprisoning and killing by their rulers drove them to these shores. And tens of thousands of Americans have visited Europe to see for themselves that people may be prosperous and happy under kingly rule. We are not afraid of kings, and there has grown up among us a class of ambitious and snobbish folks who would be glad to see the titles and the splendors of a court introduced here. Voices can readily be found to applaud the suggestion of royalty seated in Washington.

But we started wrong to arrive at monarchical government in any legitimate way. Monarchies the world over are coming down to our ideas of representative government. The peoples of the old world envy us our phenomenal prosperity and the unusual encouragement for individual initiative and development found here. They attribute these blessings to our free political institutions, and pretty much the whole world over has adopted some form of constitutional government. We have passed through all the storm and stress of a struggle for constitutional government and won. No one will say that the results are perfect, but where in we fall short there is no monarchy on earth to give us a model for improvement. In only one sense are we drifting toward a system associated with a monarch, and that is in centralization of power. But this has followed naturally from the immensity of the territory which the federal power has to regulate.

As it stands our system is, speaking broadly, as near to perfection as any in the world. Under the best governments of Europe the monarchs are merely hereditary presidents. Whatever advantage there may be in that feature of a constitutional monarchy could be secured here by extending the term of the president so that a single administration would have time to formulate and execute distinctive policies. But our improvement must come from below, not from the top. A "square deal" at the White House cannot reach very far. The people must practice the square deal among themselves and not be satisfied with merely shouting when some one higher up declares for it.

Being on a peace practice cruise, it might be advisable for "Fighting Bob" Evans to keep his nickname out of sight for awhile.

In congress those also serve who sit and lend their ears.

Federal Tax on Inheritances Not Needed. :-

By CHARLES J. BULLOCK, Professor of Economics, Harvard University.

TO Americans of the last generation the inheritance tax was A FISCAL CURIOSITY, but today it is found in no fewer than thirty-four states and must be accepted as an accomplished fact of American finance.

The present inheritance taxes employed by the several states are levied clearly to raise revenue.

But it is now proposed that we should introduce a federal inheritance tax TO REDUCE SWOLLEN FORTUNES. The proposal assumes that there is in the United States an UNDUE concentration of wealth and power in a few hands, and it cannot be denied that many thoughtful men have come to such a conclusion. But, if the existence of such a tendency be admitted, THE INHERITANCE TAX IS NO REMEDY therefor.

IF EXCESSIVE FORTUNES HAVE BEEN MADE BY RECKLESS OR DISHONEST MANIPULATION OF CORPORATIONS THE OBVIOUS REMEDY IS TO REFORM CORPORATION LAWS AND TO ELEVATE THE STANDARDS OF BUSINESS MORALS.

New legislation may be needed at some points, but RELENTLESS ENFORCEMENT OF EXISTING LAWS against conspiracy and theft would probably go far to accomplish the desired result. Such remedies are simple and old fashioned, but they have a potency far exceeding all schemes for social regeneration through act of congress.

If our federal government needs additional revenue, it can at any moment raise AN ADDITIONAL HUNDRED MILLIONS by restoring the tax on beer and tobacco to the figures enforced during the Spanish war. Our state and local governments have no such convenient resources.

FOR FINANCIAL REASONS, THEREFORE, AN INHERITANCE TAX SHOULD BE RESERVED TO THE SEVERAL STATES. FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL REASONS ITS FUNCTION SHOULD BE TO RAISE REVENUE AND NOT TO REFORM THE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

"Our Jim"

Being a few Lines of Jingle by J. Albert English, Who is a Loyal Citizen of Rush County First—a Democrat Afterwards.

If all is true you hear now days
About the governorship,
And of the gubernatorial candidates,
I guess he has got 'em on his hip.
Though in politics we differ,
Still I have a warm feeling yet for him,
And if it must be a Republican,
I am in favor of "Our Jim."

As he is an old Rush county boy,
And is making a terrible stride
To receive the nomination,
We should think of our home pride.
Let us, regardless of politics,
Lend him a helping hand.
Should he get the nomination,
Rushville would think him grand.

No doubt Taylor and Miller
Are both fitted for the place,
But they surely didn't know "Our Jim"
When they entered in the race.
He has a national reputation
That no one can take from him.
And when they count those ballots
There will be shouting for "Our Jim"

For he is amply qualified
To fill the governor's chair.
He is an orator and a statesman,
And is at ease most anywhere.
He is a handshaker from the White House,
And you can bet he has the grip.
Those fellows may be from Missouri,
But they will find "Our Jim" is it.

At the love feast some people say
The ovation given him
Made it look as though there was no one.
In the hall there but "Our Jim."
So I will say with all good feeling
When we nominate OUR man,
Who is bound to be a crackerjack
And we will best Jim if we can.

But if we are not successful
While some think our chances slim,
If it must be a Republican,
I hope it will be "Our Jim."
Now after the battle is over
And should they elect "Our Jim,"
If Hill Vance says a word to me
I will take a punch at him.
J. ALBERT ENGLISH.

.... Fitting Farewell to Their Minister ....

On the last night of the old year sixty-six of the good people of Mays and vicinity gathered at the home of S. H. Trabue to bid Rev. H. Rabb, wife and daughter a farewell. It was a jolly crowd, yet there was a undercurrent of sadness for all felt the parting was near.

Brother Rabb has been the pastor of Shiloh U. P. church since October, 1903. During this time he has resided at Mays and has been termed the popular preacher of Mays. His earnest efforts in the cause of the erection of a church at Mays and securing a piano for it have at once given him a high place in the love and esteem of the people of that place, as is evidenced by the following expression of appreciation and good will:

Once more we are cast adrift as sheep upon a desert without a shepherd. Our beloved pastor, Rev. H. Rabb, has accepted the Master's call to another field and though our hearts bleed at parting, we will endeavor to be resigned and say as Christ did in the garden, "Thy will, not mine be done."

For four years and more he has labored among us, giving us loving and faithful counsel, tenderly directing our steps in the Master's vineyard, thereby greatly endearing himself to us.

In addition to his work at Shiloh he has labored most faithfully and acceptably here at Mays and the new church being erected, is largely the fruit of his labor.

His good wife has helped him in all his work, but especial credit is due her for the splendid work she has accomplished with the junior society here. She began with a few little tots and at the present time the society is composed of forty-three bright boys and girls enthusiastic workers in the cause of the new church. Their loyalty is evidenced by their pledge to purchase the bell for the church and they now have over seventy-five dollars which has been raised in the last six months.

Realizing that a greater field has opened for their labors, we tender them our best wishes for their future prosperity and happiness and bid them God speed.

Its Supreme Work. I have just returned from a long and arduous pioneering journey in the "neglected continent"—neglected to the last by Christian Endeavor as well as by other Protestant forces—but I have found that there, among the Andes and on the pampas, in the busy cities of this continent of opportunity, a far better name for South America, as well as where Christian Endeavor has been known and prized the longest, there as well as here and everywhere else, I say, the supreme work of the society is training the church of the future.—Dr. Cook.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

Charles S. Vail, employed on the editorial staff of the Daily Republican had a peculiar experience at a local five cent theatre this week, which he did not report as news. Mr. Vail "fought, bled and died" in the Philippines during the last war, being enlisted in the regular army, and going and coming from the islands spent fifty-two days on water. He encountered a rough sea on both voyages, consequently, he can not look a bucket of water in the face without having a queer feeling and rumbling in his "displacement."

One of the films shown at the theatre this week was the tossing and rolling of the sea. Mr. Vail saw about fifty feet of it when he began to see other "things" and actually became seasick. His head fell forward on his breast as he turned a deathly pale color and became blue about the gills.

A friend seated nearby led him from the theatre. It was only after he had drunk a bromo seltzer and the Good Samaritan reached down and gave him a handful of earth—to impress upon him that they were on dry land—did he completely recover from the seasickness.

St. Paul Telegram: John Kanouse, Sr., was out along Clifty on Christmas day and was astonished to find a snake crawling along the bank. He killed it and it proved to be a snake of the common "garter" variety. Mr. Kanouse has St. Patrick beat a block.

AMUSEMENTS

"I don't know. Those inheriting nothing of evil say it is no excuse."

"It is no excuse."

"You speak with authority," he said.

"With more than you are aware of."

She murmured, not meaning to say it.

She stood up impulsively, her fresh face turned to the distant house, her rounded young figure poised in relief against the sky.

"Inherited or not, idleness, procrastination, are my besetting sins. Can't you suggest the remedy, Mr. Seward?"

"But they are only the thieves of Time, and we kill the poor old gentleman."

"Leagued assassins," she repeated pensively.

Her gown had caught on the cliff briers. He knelt to release it, she looking down, noting an ugly tear in the fabric.

"Payment for my iniquities—the first installment," she said, still looking down over his shoulder and watching his efforts to release her. "Thank you, Mr. Seward. I think we ought to start, don't you?"

He straightened up, smiling, awaiting her further pleasure. Her pleasure being capricious, she seated herself again, saying: "What I meant to say was this: Evils that spring from heredity are no excuse for misconduct in people of our sort. Environment, not heredity, counts. And it's our business, who have every chance in the world, to make good."

He looked down, amused at the piquant incongruity of voice and vernacular.

"What time is it?" she asked irrelevantly.

He glanced at his watch. She turned her eyes toward the level sun, conscious and a little conscience stricken that it was too late for her to drive to Black Falls Crossing unless she started at once.

It grew stiller. The wind went down with the sun.

Doubtless he had forgotten to tell her the time. She had almost forgotten that she had asked him. With the silence of sunset a languor, the indolence of content, crept over her. She saw him close his watch with the absentminded air which she already associated with him, and she let the question go from sheer disinclination for the effort of repetition—let the projected drive go—acquiescent, content that matters shape themselves without any interference from her. The sense of ease, of physical well being, invaded her with an agreeable relaxation as though tension somewhere had slackened.

The conversation drifted illogically. Sometimes he stirred her to amusement, even a hushed laughter. Sometimes she smilingly agreed with his views. Sometimes she let them go uncontradicted or, intent on her own ideas, shook her small head in amused disapproval.

The stillness over all, the deepening mellow light, the blessed indolence of the young world and their few years in it—youth—that was perhaps the key to it all, after all.

"Tomorrow," she mused aloud, knees cradled in her clasped fingers—"tomorrow they'll shoot, with great circumstance and fuss, a few native woodcock—there's no flight yet from the north—a few grouse, fewer snipe, a stray duck or two. Others will drive motor cars over bad roads. Others will ride, sail, golf—anything to kill the eternal enemy. You know the majority of the people here or coming, don't you?"

"Who are they?"

She began, "The Leroy Mortimers?"

"Oh, yes."

"Lord Alderdene and Captain Voucher and the Page twins and Marion?"

"Yes."

"Rena Bonnesdel, the Tassel girl, Agatha Cathness, Mrs. Vendenning—all sorts, all sets." And, with an effort, "If I'm to drive I should like to know what time it is."

He informed her, and she, too indolent to pretend surprise and finding reproach easier, told him that he had no business to permit her to forget.

His smiling serenity, under the rebuke aroused in her a slight resentment, as though he had taken something for granted.

Besides, she had grown uneasy. She had wired Quarrier, saying she would meet him and drive him over. He had replied at once, naming his train. He was an exact man and expected method and precision in others. She didn't exactly know how it might affect him if his reasonable demand was unsatisfied. She did not know him very well yet.

And, thinking of him now, she again made up her mind to give him the answer which he now had every reason to expect from her. This decision appeared to lubricate her conscience. It ran more smoothly now, emitting fewer creaks.

"You say that you know Mr. Quarrier?" she began thoughtfully.

"Not well."

"I hope you will like him, Mr. Seward."

"I do not think he likes me, Miss Landis. He has reasons not to."

She looked up, suddenly remembering: "Oh—since that scrape? What has Mr. Quarrier to do?" She did not finish the sentence. A troubled silence followed. She was trying to remember the details—something she had paid small attention to at the time; something so foreign to her, so distant from her comprehension, that it had not touched her closely enough for her to remember exactly what this young man might have done to forfeit the good will of Howard Quarrier.

She looked at Seward. It was impossible that anything very bad could come from such a man. And, pursuing her reasoning aloud: "It couldn't have been very awful," she argued; "something foolish about an actress, was it not? And that could not concern Mr. Quarrier."

"I thought you did know; I thought you—remembered—while you were driving me over from the station—that I was dropped from my club."

She flushed up. "Oh, but what had Mr. Quarrier to do with that?"

"He is a governor of that club."

"You mean that Mr. Quarrier had you—dropped?"

"What else could he do? A man who is idiot enough to risk making his own club notorious must take the consequences, and they say I took that risk. Therefore Mr. Quarrier, Major Belwether—all the governors did their duty. I—I naturally concluded that no governor of the Patrooms club feels very kindly toward me."

Miss Landis sat very still, her small head bent, a flush still brightening her fair face.

She recalled a few of the details now—the scandal—something of the story. Which particular actress it was she could not remember, but some men who had dined too freely had made the wager, and this boy sitting beside her had accepted it and won it by bringing into the sacred precincts of the Patrooms club a foolish girl disguised in a man's evening dress.

That was bad enough. That somebody promptly discovered it was worse, but worst of all was the publicity, the club's name smirched, the young man expelled from one of the best two clubs in the metropolis.

To read of such things in the columns of a daily paper had meant little to her except to repel her. To hear it mentioned among people of her own sort had left her incurious and indifferent, but now she saw it in a new light, with the young man who had figured in it seated beside her. Did such men as he—such attractive, well bred, amusing men as he—do that sort of thing?

"Is that the kind of man you are, Mr. Seward?" she said impulsively.

"It appears that I was. I don't know what I am or may be."

"The pity of it!" she said, still swayed by impulse. "Why did you do—didn't you know—realize what you were doing—bringing discredit on your own club?"

"I was in no condition to know, Miss Landis."

The crude brutality of the expression might merely have hurt or disgusted her had she been less intelligent, nor, as it was, did she fully understand why he chose to use it unless that he meant it in self punishment.

"It's rather shameful!" she said hotly.

"Yes," he assented; "it's a bad beginning."

"A beginning! Do you mean to go on?"

He did not reply. His head was partly turned from her. She sat silent for awhile. The dog had returned to lie at Seward's feet, his brown eyes tirelessly watching the man he had chosen for his friend, and the man, without turning his eyes, dropped one hand on the dog's head, caressing the silky ears.

Some sentimentalist had once said that no man who cared for animals could be wholly bad. Inexperience inclined her to believe it. Then, too, she had that inclination for overlooking offenses committed against precept which appears to be one of those edifying human traits peculiar to neither sex and common to both. Besides, her knowledge of such matters was as vague as her mind was healthy and body wholesome. Men who dined incautiously were not remarkable for their rarity. The actress habit, being incomprehensible to her, meant nothing, and she said innocently: "It is not for such things that we drop men, Mr. Seward. You know that, of course."

"For what do you drop men?"

"For falsehood, deception, any dishonesty."

"And you don't drop a man when you read in the papers that one of the best two clubs in town has expelled him?"

She gave him a troubled glance, and, naively, "But you are still a member of the other, are you not?" Then, hardening, "It was common, common, thoroughly disgraceful and incomprehensible!" And with every word uttered insensibly warning in her heart toward him whom she was chastening: "It was not even bad. It was worse than being simply bad. It was stupid!"

He nodded, one hand slowly caressing the dog's head where it lay across his knees.

She watched him a moment, hesitated, then, smiling a little, "So now I know the worst about you, do I not?" she concluded.

He did not answer. She waited, the smile still curving her red mouth. Had she been too severe, she wondered.

"You may help me to my feet," she said sweetly. She was very young.

He rose at once, holding out his hands to aid her in that pleasantly impersonal manner so suited to him, and now they stood together in the purple dusk of the uplands—two people young enough to take one another seriously.

They walked for awhile, subdued, soberly picking their path through the dusk. After a few moments she began to feel doubtful, a little uneasy, partly from a reaction which was natural, partly because she was not at all sure what either Quarrier or Major Belwether would think of the terms she was already on with Seward. Suppose they objected? She had never thwarted either of these gentlemen. Besides, she already had a temporary interest in Seward—the interest that women always cherish, quite unconsciously, for the man whose shortcomings they have consented to overlook.

As they crossed the headland through the deepening dusk the acetylene lamps on a cluster of motor cars spread a blinding light across the scrub. The windows of Shotover House were brilliantly illuminated.

"Our shooting party has returned," she said.

They crossed the drive through the white glare of the motor lamps. People were passing—grooms with dogs and guns and fluffy bunches of game birds; several women in motor costumes, veils afloat; a man or two in shooting tweeds or khaki.

As they entered the hall together she turned to him, an indefinable smile curving her lips; then, with a little nod, friendly and sweet, she left him standing at the open door of the gunroom.

CHAPTER THREE

THE first person he encountered in the gunroom was Quarrier, who favored him with an expressionless stare, then with a bow, quite perfunctory and noncommittal. It was plain enough that he had not expected to meet Seward at Shotover House.

Kemp Ferrall, a dark, stocky, active man of forty, was in the act of draining a glass when through the bottom he caught sight of Seward. He finished in a gulp and advanced, one muscular hand outstretched. "Hello, Stephen! Heard you'd arrived, tried the Scotch and bolted with Sylvia Landis. That's all right, too, but you should have come for the opening day. Lots of native woodcock—eh, Blinky?" turning to Lord Alderdene, and again to Seward. "You know all these fellows—Mortimer yonder"—There was the slightest ring in his voice, and Leroy Mortimer, red necked, bulky and heavy eyed, emptied his glass and came over, followed by Lord Alderdene, blinking madly through his shooting goggles and showing all his teeth like a pointer with a tick. Captain Voucher, a gentleman with the vivid coloring of a healthy groom on a cold day, came up, followed by the Page boys, Willis and Gordon, who shook hands shyly, enchanted to be on easy terms with the notorious Mr. Seward. And, last of all, Tom O'Hara arrived, reeking of the saddle and clinking a pair of trooper's spurs over the floor—relics of his bloodless Porto Rico campaign with Squadron A.

It was patent to every man present that the Kemp Ferralls had determined to ignore Seward's recent foolishness, which indicated that he might reasonably expect the continued good will of several sets the orbits of which intersected in the social system of his native city. Indeed, the few qualified to snub him cared nothing about the matter, and it was not likely that anybody else would take the initiative in being disagreeable to a young man the fortunes and misfortunes of whose race were part of the history of Manhattan Island. Swards, good or bad, were a matter of course in New York.

So everybody in the gunroom was civil enough, and he chose Scotch and found a seat beside Alderdene, who sat biting at a smoky pipe and fingering a tumbler of smoldering Scotch, blinking away like mad through his shooting goggles at everybody.

"These little brown snipe you call woodcock," he began—"we bagged nine brace, d'you see?"

But of all the damnable bogs and covers—"Rotten," said Mortimer thickly.

"Ferrall, you're all calf and biceps, and it's well enough for you to go floundering into bogs."

"Oh, go and pot Beverly Plank's tame pheasants," retorted Ferrall amiably. "Captain Voucher had a blank day, but he isn't kicking."

"Not I," said Voucher. "The sport is capital if one can manage to hit the beggars."

"Oh, everybody misses in snap shooting," observed Ferrall—"that is, everybody except Stephen Seward with his unholy left barrel. Crack, and," turning to Alderdene, "it's like taking money from you, Blinky, which reminds me that we've time for a little preference before dressing."

His squinting lordship declined and took an easier position in his chair, extending a pair of little bandy legs draped in baggy tweed knickerbockers and leather spats. Mortimer, industriously distending his skin with whisky, reached for the decanter. The aromatic perfume of the spirits aroused Seward, and he instinctively nodded his desire to a servant.

"This salt air keeps one thirsty," he observed to Ferrall. Then something in his host's expression arrested the glass at his lips. He had already been using the decanter a good deal. Except Mortimer, nobody was doing that sort of thing as freely as he.

He set his glass on the table thoughtfully. A tinge of color had crept into his lean cheeks.

Ferrall, too, suddenly uncomfortable, stood up, saying something about dressing. Several men arose a trifle stiffly, feeling in every joint the result of the first day's shooting after all those idle months. Mortimer got up, with an unfeigned groan. Seward followed, leaving his glass untouched.

One or two other men came in from the billiard room. All greeted Seward amiably, all excepting one, who may not have seen him—an elderly, pink, soft gentleman with white downy chop whiskers and the profile of a benevolent buck rabbit.

"How do you do, Mr. Belwether?" said Seward in a low voice without offering his hand.

BEE'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR CURES COUGHS AND COLDS

The Vaude shows tonight, "Sailor's Practical Joke," "Music Forward," and "Champion After All," three big subjects and all excellent pictures. In the first is seen three seamen drinking in a tavern, finally one of them, after drinking too much, drops as if dead. His cronies, alarmed, flee, and the landlady, unwilling to have a corpse to her credit, carries him to a neighbor's doorway. From that on the supposed corpse has quite a lively time.

Music Forward! This order is given by a lady in colonial costume, and in marches a group of five musicians. The director taking the head off each, throws it into a huge music staff and each becomes a note on the scale. Many other changes are made and is one of the good films made by Pathe.

"Champion After All," has been seen here before, but is a fine subject and is worth seeing again.

In the change of program at the Grand Theatre tonight will be shown three new films, as follows: "The Bellboy's Revenge," "The Miser's Hoard," and "He Could Not Fool the Kid." In the first and last subjects are seen many ludicrous situations, making them very laughable in the extreme. The "Miser's Hoard" is a very pathetic subject, with a good moral, especially on account of the recent financial stringency, when a great deal of money was hoarded instead of putting it in the banks where it belonged.

A hot contest is promised in the Foxy Five and Indianapolis Centrals basket ball game at the Kramer rink next Monday evening.

The members of the Knights of Columbus gave a skating party at the Kramer rink last night. A large number were in attendance.

The war is over between the local five cent theatres and a treaty of peace has been signed.

Ravages of White Plague Strikers Rioting at Muncie Burned While in Jail

MUNCIE STRIKERS ANGRY

Strike-Breakers Try to Run Cars, and Crowd Hurls Stones.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 3.—Rioting in the streetcar strike here was resumed after the Indiana Union Traction company endeavored to operate the city cars with strike-breakers. Fifty officers, the police force, sheriff and deputies, tried vainly to handle the mob of 2,000 people that gathered, but was powerless, and in order to prevent disorder the police themselves finally ordered the cars back to the barn after several persons had been painfully injured.

The mob then surrounded the barns and threatened to destroy them. The strike-breakers, of whom there are seventy-five or a hundred in the city, have been taken to the barns and are held there for safety.

Rioting took the usual forms. Stones were hurled at the cars and one car was surrounded at Mulberry and Main streets. General Oran Perry was dispatched from Indianapolis to Muncie to see whether troops will be needed. The traction men are anxious that they be sent. Local officers still hope to handle the mob without assistance from the troops.

Only two arrests were made during the rioting. One was of a man in the mob who threw a stone at one of the streetcars. Another was a strike-breaker who had a cocked revolver in his hands ready to fire into the crowd. As a preventative measure Mayor Guthrie ordered the saloons closed after the rioting had started.

Fell From High Bridge.

New York, Jan. 3.—After falling 150 feet from the Blackwells Island bridge into the East river, Henry Smith swam ashore, not seriously harmed by a fall which ordinarily would have been fatal. Smith was at work on the bridge and tumbled off one of the great beams. In falling his head struck against a chain which dangled from the bridge, and he suffered a painful scalp wound. Turning in the air, he struck the water feet foremost. Had he landed in any other way the shock would have killed him. His fellow-laborers on the bridge were astounded to see him strike out for the shore. He was taken to a hospital and treated for the scalp wound.

AN AWFUL RECORD

Consumption Claimed 4,297 Victims in Indiana in the Year 1907.

ONE GRATIFYING POINT

While Mortality From This Preventable Disease Was Appalling, It Was Less Than in 1906.

In Addition to This There Were 3,488 Victims of Pneumonia, Another Preventable Disease.

Indianapolis, Jan. 3.—Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, has compiled a bulletin showing there were 4,297 deaths in Indiana in 1907 from tuberculosis. In 1906 there were 4,456 deaths from the same cause. The deaths from tuberculosis last year were divided as follows: Males, 1,675; females, 2,771; mothers between the age of eighteen and forty, 917; fathers of the same age, 255; number of homes invaded, 3,283; number of orphans under twelve, 2,353.

Dr. Hurty estimates that the disease cost the state $10,000,000. Dr. Hurty says that statistics show there were fewer deaths and less disease in Indiana in 1907 than in 1906. In 1907 there were 3,488 deaths from pneumonia.

According to the report there was less sickness and disease of all kinds in the state during the year ending November 30, 1907, than during the preceding year. Smallpox was reported present somewhere every month in the year. The disease caused nine deaths. The number of deaths from smallpox during the preceding year was six. Deaths from diphtheria numbered 353, as against 402 in the preceding year. Scarlet fever caused ninety-seven deaths, and the number of deaths from this disease during the preceding year was 101. Typhoid fever deaths numbered 858. The number in the preceding year was 913, the decrease for 1907 being 6 per cent.

In the report the work of the various departments of the state board of health are discussed and the new laws relating to the collection of vital statistics and other features of the board's work are considered. Great stress is laid on the importance of the prompt and proper collection of vital statistics. This means much, it is stated, in fighting disease because the disease must be found before it can be successfully combated. Report is made also of the work of the food and drug laboratory in the charge of H. E. Barnard. This laboratory made 5,098 analyses during the year.

Fearful Return to Prison.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 3.—Fred Asmus, a paroled convict from the state prison, committed suicide near Furnessville, in Porter county. Asmus was convicted in Elkhart county for horse stealing, and was released on parole four months ago, becoming a tenant on a farm near Furnessville. He took to drinking, and it is supposed that he drank the poison because he feared he would be returned to prison. He was thirty-two years old and lived with his wife and two children, who are left in destitute circumstances.

His Clothing Caught Fire.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 3.—Henry Wilton, intoxicated and confined in the calaboose at New Haven by the village marshal, caught his clothing on fire while alone and when found he was unconscious, and even his shoes were burning. He was brought to a hospital in this city, but he is not likely to recover.

FOR A STATE FLOWER

Efforts to Have Oklahoma Adopt the Mistletoe.

TERRITORY'S FLORAL EMBLEM

Scientists Consider Variety That Grows in New State the Finest in the World—Goldenrod a Rival—Sunflower Also Has an Advocate—Mistletoe Not Adopted by Other States.

Mistletoe gathering in Oklahoma was recently at its height, and every day big crates of the beautiful parasite, with its waxy berries, were shipped out for eastern points, especially from the Chickasaw nation, to form a prominent part of the Christmas decoration in homes all over the country. It is generally conceded that Oklahoma mistletoe is the finest to be found anywhere in the United States, and it is doubtful if there is any other locality where it is so abundant.

It is largely on that account that mistletoe was chosen as the floral emblem of the territory of Oklahoma and will probably be regarded as the emblem of the new state, says a special dispatch from Guthrie, Okla., to the St. Louis Republic. It had to contest for the honor with the passion flower at the time it was chosen, and various other substitutes have been suggested since that time. There was a serious effort during Oklahoma's constitutional convention to make alfalfa the state flower, and now a movement has been started in favor of the goldenrod.

The opponents of the proposed change point out the fact that Alabama, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska and Pennsylvania have already adopted the goldenrod and that it is also the national floral emblem. John Golob, editor of the Guthrie State Register, who led the fight for the original adoption of the mistletoe, is strongly opposed to the goldenrod idea and wants the present emblem retained.

"As far as the nativity of the goldenrod in Oklahoma is concerned," he said, "it came here with civilization, as did the sunflower to Kansas. In fact, the sunflower is as native here as in Kansas and, to the grief of farmers, is as numerous and prolific. Why not choose the sunflower, since we would at least have to share its worship with only one state instead of half a dozen, with the United States thrown in?"

"It is different with the mistletoe. The mistletoe does not grow everywhere and cannot be made to grow where it does not choose to grow. It is native wherever it grows. There are few places in the United States, in fact, in the world, where the white berried kind grows. It is conceded by scientists that the Oklahoma mistletoe is of rare quality and the finest in the world.

"The same argument used for the mistletoe as the floral emblem of Oklahoma territory holds good for the state of Oklahoma. The matter was all thrashed out by the papers at that time. The opponents of the mistletoe put up the passion flower against it. But it was clearly shown that an imported flower with the sentimental allegory attached that it sprang from a drop of blood from the pierced wound of Christ on Calvary was not emblematic of any specific quality possessed by Oklahoma not possessed elsewhere. But the mistletoe possesses such specific qualities native to Oklahoma or it wouldn't have been here before the white man was.

"Besides the mistletoe has the further claim that it has not been adopted by any other states, and in spite of its parasite growth it has appealed to the heart of humanity with greater affection than any other purely ornamental flora that grows, not even the laurel, the garland of the poets, excepted. In addition to its Christmas cheer and its propitious influence on lovers, its very high bred origin, objected to by its opponents, can be turned into its favor by a natural allegory not yet written. Why cannot its spiritual quality be denoted by the very fact that it does not have to spring humbly from the lowly earth, but, like the soul of man, is breathed into the body by the spirit of the divine.

"At any rate, like the soul, it is indestructible by the ordinary laws of nature. It is perennial, and the rigors of winter that, like the angel of death, lay all other flowers in their shroud of snow, and the winds that blow a chill requiem over their dead forms, are like the warm breath of the resurrection morn to the mistletoe."

The Armada of Peace.
Our ships are sailing, sailing; their pennants proudly wave.
There never have been sailors more loyal or more brave.
And, while one prayer is offered through all our peaceful land,
The nations watch and wonder and cannot understand.

The polished guns are gleaming, the silent gunners wait;
Through peaceful days and stormy, prepared for any fate,
The stately columns follow the mighty flagship's lead,
And all the nations wonder and watch the fleet proceed.

Our ships are sailing, sailing; behind the miles increase,
And from each masthead flutter the flags that signal peace.
The reefs and shoals before them have fled strong hearts with dread,
God grant they reach the haven that lies so far ahead!

Not since the god of battles first caused a spear to hiss
Have men set forth so splendid a force for peace as this,
So let the ships sail onward till all the globe is spanned
And all the watching nations at last shall understand.

TO SAVE HISTORIC HOUSE.

Plans For Preservation of Francis Scott Key's Home.

Preservation of the old home of Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," is at last assured, writes a Washington correspondent of the New York Globe. The old house where Key lived is in historic Georgetown, now a part of Washington, and while a substantially built structure, it is fast falling into a state of dilapidation. The Francis Scott Key Memorial association has decided to purchase the property for $15,000 and to expend a liberal sum in restoring the building to the condition it was when occupied by the author of the national anthem.

Charles Weisgerber, who preserved the home of Betsy Ross, the birthplace of the American flag, in Philadelphia, will soon go to Washington and take charge of the Key mansion. Mr. Weisgerber originated the plan to preserve the Ross home and has managed its finances since that time. He has agreed to assume control of the Key home, and it is thought the success of the movement for preservation of it is now a certainty.

After the house or "mansion," as it is generally called, has been restored the plan is to open it to the public. The association that has undertaken to preserve the property has a distinguished membership, including such men as Admiral Dewey, Admiral Schley and others, and membership certificates will be issued with a view of getting a large number of people all over the United States interested in the movement.

Handsome reproductions of the painting, "The Inspiration," portraying Francis Scott Key anxiously watching from his prison ship in Baltimore harbor to see whether the flag still floats over Fort Mifflin, are being given to persons forming clubs to aid the objects of the association.

RADIUM TO PHILIPPINES.

One-thousandth of a Gram For Experiments Costs $3,000.

The bureau of insular affairs recently paid the largest price for the smallest shipment ever sent to the Philippines, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. It has bought for $3,000 one-thousandth of a gram of radium, which is equal to .01543 of a grain, Troy weight. The purchase, which was made in New York, is for the bureau of science of the Philippines, which purposes to use the radium in a series of experiments it is about to conduct.

The insular bureau is in something of a quandary as to how it shall ship this precious mineral speck, but it is assumed that the New York concern from which it is bought will manage to pack it in a sufficient number of wrappers to give it at least tangible bulk.

When the requisition reached the bureau the acting chief calmly called for quotations on radium by the pound or ounce, but the New York purveyors evidently feared that the price on radium in such quantities would cause mental and physical collapse in the bureau and accordingly disregarded the specifications and quoted a price of $3,000 for the quantity above noted.

Major McIntyre, it is stated on trustworthy authority, put on his strongest spectacles and then sent for a magnifying glass merely to read the quotation, after which he sent it by wire to Manila, but with little expectation that the offer would be accepted. Greatly to his surprise, however, he received a reply a few hours later saying, in effect, that the bureau of science would like $3,000 worth, but would regard the price as too high if any extra charge was made for boxing or shipping. Accordingly the radium will soon be forwarded.

IRISH POTATOES IN CHINA.

American Consul Says Chinese Are Being Taught Their Value.

The Irish potato is now known to the people of the far east, according to Wilbur T. Gracey, United States consul at Tsingtau, China, writes a Washington correspondent of the New York Post. In a report to the state department Mr. Gracey says that for years the foreign residents of Ichoufu, a purely native city in the interior of the province of Shantung, have been trying to introduce the cultivation of white potatoes among the natives. Their efforts seem likely to be successful, as Mr. Gracey learns that many of the Chinese farmers are now raising the vegetable. He says the restaurants have discovered that the potato will take the place of the more expensive "shanyue," or yam.

Hitherto the Chinese have never used fresh milk to any extent, their cows being kept for field purposes only. Consul Gracey reports that the dairy started under foreign patronage at Ichoufu seventeen years ago now sells more milk to Chinese patrons than to foreigners. Condensed milk has become popular and is now being used to a considerable extent throughout the empire.

A Ring For Purdue University Men.

Purdue university graduates the world over will have a uniform mark of identification, if present plans are carried out, in the shape of a Purdue ring, says a Lafayette (Ind.) correspondent of the Indianapolis News. The ring will correspond to the alumni pin which Princeton and other eastern universities provide for their graduates. Several of the alumni associations, such as those at Pittsburgh, New York, Cleveland and Chicago, have endorsed the plan. Murray Grant of Seattle, Wash., president of the general alumni association, has suggested that the ring bear a small imitation of the Purdue seal.

CRITICISING THE NAVY

Warm Defense of Our Own Present System of Construction.

GREAT VICTORIES RECALLED.

Paul Thieman Comments on Strange Forgetfulness of American Navy's Former Brilliant Achievements. Claims Our Fleet Was Designed With a Reason For Every Detail.

It is rather curious and queer that in discussing the United States navy the critics appear to forget that only three navies have decisive modern naval history. These are the American, British and Japanese navies, says Paul Thieman in the New York American. The Japanese have whipped two adversaries. One was China. And the Chinese squadron really put up a stiffer fight in the battle of the Yalu than the Russians at Port Arthur or in the straits. Russia was notoriously inefficient at sea.

No navy, except the brief, concentrated experience of the Japanese, has done any such amount of actual fighting, since the Napoleonic period, as the navy of the United States. Since the era of the battles of the Nile and Trafalgar the British navy has used its guns in battle only spasmodically against foes of no consequence. But subsequent to their exploits on the then formidable north coast of Africa and their victorious sea duels with the British, American ships have cleared for action and used their batteries on many coasts.

The variety and weight of the performances of the United States navy in the civil war—its many battles with heavy shore fortifications—are unparalleled. And it is almost forgotten that the United States Asiatic squadron landed on the Korean coast in the seventies and chastised the Koreans, both brilliantly and bloodily, for mistreatment of shipwrecked American sailors. The Koreans left 700 dead in the forts stormed by our bluejackets and marine infantry. It is almost forgotten that one little American warship fought and whipped Japan's entire early navy. Upon the banners of the United States marine corps are blazoned the names of desperate battles unknown to the average young American today. Since then came the masterful exploits of the Spanish war. No navy ever performed with such absolute and supreme mastery of the enemy as ours in that war. There was never anything like it.

Past glory and success do not, of course, render innocuous any defects and mistakes in the construction and equipment of ships flying the flag today. Still it may be suggested that there are certain victorious experiences in our naval past which cannot be ignored—which it would be folly to neglect.

The low freeboard of our battleships is bitterly criticised. It is plain enough that shots passing over our low lying ships would hit the high freeboard foreign type. It is plain, too, that fleet actions will hardly ever take place in a heavy sea. A high freeboard fleet would have the advantage in a high sea, but under the usual conditions of fighting our low lying vessels would have the best of it, and we trust our commanders for that.

The question of the height of the heavy armor belt above the load line and its depth below not only has to do with gunfire, but with torpedo attack.

Our direct ammunition shaft has to do with the rapidity of firing.

It is preposterous to assume that the American fleet has not been designed with a reason for every detail. Many of the forms evolved were compromises between the extreme views of navigation, ordnance, engineer and construction officers. But, however they were determined, there were reasons, and behind these reasons were the experiences and results of a brilliant and victorious naval history which there is a curious tendency to forget and kowtow to methods of countries with no naval annals.

Maple City Self Washing Soap

Then why does the naphtha soap man try to keep you from boiling clothes? Simply because his soap is not good in hot water. Heat always evaporates the naphtha leaving you only a lump of fat to wash with. Maple City Soap works as well with cold water as any soap, and better still with boiling. It destroys every germ of uncleanness and makes the clothes healthy as well as perfectly clean. It is absolutely without a rival for washing windows, woodwork, china, silver and tinware. ## ALL READY FOR SHORT COURSE

Preparations Completed for the Purdue University Agriculture Week of School

INTEREST IN SCOTT TROPHY

Rush County Being a "Corn County". Will be a Formidable Contestant for Honors

The final details have received attention and everything is now in readiness for the Farmer's Short Course to be held at Purdue University January 18 to 18, 1908. Everyone connected with the work is busy and nothing which will add interest or make the work more instructive is being left undone.

The Agricultural Hall is now aglow with corn. In the Assembly room, long tables lined with samples are awaiting the corn growers. This room will be given over to the men who have not attended the Corn School in previous years. An adjoining room will be had for those who have previously attended. Here advanced work in corn judging will be given. This feature should induce those who have attended before to return this year.

In a third room, instruction will be given to the boys. Special attention will be given to this class and at the end of the week an examination will be held for those who wish to compete for the $75.00 Scott Trophy. The trophy is to be held by the winner for one year.

Several progressive Rush County farmers will be in attendance as usual.

WHAT CAUSES INDIGESTION

To be Cured. Weakness of Stomach Muscles Must be Overcome.

The chief cause of indigestion is weakness of the stomach muscles and lack of gastric juices.

By taking Mi-o-na stomach tablets the stomach muscles will be stimulated and strengthened and the flow of gastric juices will be increased. Mi-o-na does not do the stomach's work; it makes the stomach strong enough to do it, and in this way completely cures the weakness so there is no further need of medicine.

No matter how severe a case of stomach trouble you have, Mi-o-na will cure it by strengthening your digestive system so that both stomach and bowels do their work as they should.

Johnson's Drug Store sell Mi-o-na in 50-cent boxes and guarantee to refund the money if the remedy does not cure.

TEACHERS MAY LOSE LICENSE

At Hands of County Superintendent for Failure to Attend Institute

CAN REVOKE LICENSE

If Teacher Does Not Try To Keep Abreast of Times

That County Superintendent W. O. Headlee may revoke licenses of teachers who fail to attend institutes and who shirk work, is seen by the decision of the Supreme court, which will be read with considerable interest, and serve as a warning to those old time teachers who believe they do not have to listen to their chief.

In the decision the county superintendents in the State have been strengthened and they can decapitate teachers from the corps of instructors hereafter if they refuse to keep abreast of the times. In such cases the superintendents were powerless as there was some question about their authority.

The case was founded on an injunction forbidding the school superintendent of Owen county to revoke the teacher's license of Harry Fritts which had been reversed by the supreme court. Fritts was charged with refusal to attend teachers' institutes, failure to make daily preparation and failure to board near enough to the school to open the building at a reasonable time each day. He had been teaching for twenty years, had a grade of 92 in success, and had a two years' license.

The Supreme court holds that the statute authorizing the revocation of a teachers' license by the county superintendent, with an appeal to the State superintendent, is valid, and says that a license may be revoked upon proof of such neglect.

A Word to the Ladies

You have trouble in cleaning your gloves, like everyone else, when you use gasoline the whole glove must be covered to avoid spotting, then you must wait until they dry before you can wear them again. Where gasoline or benzine is used dirt collects very quickly. We do away with this trouble if you use our

Perfect Glove Cleaner

This cleaner is in cake form and is used dry. If you put your gloves on and discover they are dirty, you can clean them in an instance without removing them and not compelled to wait for them to dry.....15c

You Have Tried the Rest, Now Try the Best

For three years of close attention to business and the right treatment to all, we have made a steady gain in the confidence of the people and increase in business. Stores are like men—usually those succeed who deserve success—and no business depends so much on the confidence of the public as that of Druggist. It should be so. The business lives so close to the health and lives of the people that there should be no doubt as to the reliability of goods, or as to the skill and accuracy of the druggist, and trust we may enjoy the confidence of the public for years to come.

REASON WHY: It shall always be our desire to please and keep stock in every way suited to the needs of the community—THE BEST OF EVERYTHING and plenty of it—at the right price. We positively will not substitute, and everyone connected with the store is a Registered Pharmacist. Wishing you a prosperous 1908, we are
